Phoebe: Good for you. That was really mature.

Joey: What? No, the only reason I'm going to their stupid new house, is so I can point out everything that's wrong with it, so they don't move. I'm gonna make them stay here.

Maitre d': I'm sorry. That's always Mr. Campbell's table.

Rachel: No, I-I-I love it there.

Mr Campbell: Well, if you don't want to leave, why are we having this lunch?

(Rachel mimes and mouths to Mr. Campbell "That is my boss", pointing to Mr. Zellner)

Mr Campbell: What?

(Rachel now silently whispers "That's my boss".)

Mr Campbell: That's Hugo Boss?

Hugo Boss AG (FWB: BOSS) is a fashion house(n. 时装商店) based in Germany, which specializes in(v. 专攻于) high-end and casual menswear and womenswear. It is named after its founder, Hugo Boss. The latter, Baldessarini GmbH, is a more independent business unit which focuses on a more prestigious image than its two sister brands. It sells, like the other Hugo Boss brands, clothing, shoes, fragrances and accessories but will leave Hugo Boss after the Spring/Summer 2007 collection has been sent to boutiques(n. 精品店). This is due to the newly launched premium Boss line, Boss Black Selection, outselling(vt. 比: 卖得多) Baldessarini.

(Rachel holds her hand in order to support her head. Mr. Zellner obviously overheard the conversation.)

Chandler: Hey, how'd the interview go?

Rachel: Oh! It's not good.

Chandler: You know, I always feel that way after an interview. I'll bet it went better than you think.

Rachel: Well, I didn't get the job at Gucci and I got fired from Ralph Lauren.

Chandler: That is a bad interview.

Phoebe: What are you, what are you talking about? How did this happen?

Rachel: Well, my boss was at the same restaurant where I was having my interview and he heard everything. So later he calls me to his office and he tells me that he's gonna have to let me go, because I'm not a team player. And I said "Wait a minute! Yes I am." and I had to sit there for 45 minutes while he proved that that in fact... was true.

Mark: Clever. (back to Rachel) So how are you?

Rachel: Oh, well, (looks at her box and chair) you're not catching me on my best day.

Mark: Are you sure, because we may have something at Louis Vuitton.

The Louis Vuitton Company (more commonly known simply as Louis Vuitton) is a luxury French fashion and leather goods brand and company, headquartered in Paris, France. It is a division of the French holding company (n. 控股公司), LVMH Louis Vuitton Moët Hennessy S. A. The company is named after its founder Louis Vuitton (August 41821–February 271892), who designed and manufactured luggage (n. 皮箱), as a Malletier during the second half of the nineteenth century. The company manufactures and markets luxury leather goods, fashion accessories, prêt-à-porter, and jewelry. Many of the company's products utilize the signature brown Damier (n. <法>素色大方格花样) and Monogram (n. 花押字) Canvas.

materials, both of which were first used in the late 19th century. All of the company's products utilize the eponymous(adj. 使得名的) LV initials. The company only markets its product through its own stores throughout the world, which allows it to control product quality and pricing, and to prevent counterfeit products entering its distribution channels. In addition, the company added a single online retailer to sell some of its products (along with some of its sister companies such as Christian Dior). One hundred and fifty years after its eponymous(adj. 齐名的) founder began creating and selling trunks[n. (旅行用) 大皮箱] in Paris, Louis Vuitton's signature leather goods are considered a status symbol(n. 社会地位象征) around the globe and are highly regarded in the fashion world. The company's iconic Monogram Canvas design can be considered the first designer label in contemporary history(n. 当代史); the design was created in 1896 by Vuitton's son Georges and was intended to prevent counterfeiting.

Rachel: Well, screw charity work. What've you got?

Mark: Why don't we have dinner tonight and talk about it?

Rachel: Great! I'll call ya!

Mark: (shakes Ross' hand) Nice to see you.

Ross: Yeah! yeah, I got tenure! (Mark looks at him strangely and walks off)

Rachel: (very excited) Oh my God!

Ross: See? I told you something good would come along. And he seemed really nice. I've met him before?

Rachel: Ross! That's Mark. From Bloomingdale's? You were insanely jealous of him.

Rachel: Ugh.

Ross: I'm serious. I just don't trust that guy, okay?

Rachel: Ross, you know what? (looks over to the door and sees security staring at them) Okay, let's talk about it later, there comes security. (Takes her box and leaves. Mike: Really?

Phoebe: Yeah. I'm Phoebe Buffay-Hannigan Banana Hammock.

Mike: Do you even know what a banana hammock is?

banana hammock<俚> men's style of undergarment(n. 内衣) that holds the genitalia in a sling(n. 吊索)-like hammock apparatus, allowing the meat knot to protrude(v. 突出) offensively. Favored by greasy Europeans at the beach, and even greasier weightlifters during competition and posedown sessions.

Phoebe: It's a funny word.

Mike: It's a speedo.

A speedo, which takes its name from the swimsuit brand Speedo, may refer to any briefs-style male swimsuit such as those used in competitive swimming, regardless of the actual manufacturer (see genericized trademark). Such garments are otherwise also referred to as competition briefs, swim briefs, bathers, posing briefs, or racing briefs. The term is most common in Australian English but is also widely used in other English-speaking countries. Speedos were invented by the Australian company, Speedo. Like the underwear briefs, speedos feature a "V-shape" front and solid back providing form-fitting(adj. 合身的) coverage(n. 覆盖). They are typically worn below the lower waist. They are secured by a drawstring(n. 裤腰带) and thin banding at the upper thighs. Most speedos are made of a nylon and lycra/spandex composite. Suits commonly have an elastic front lining made of similar fabric and are secured around the waist with a cord draw string.

Phoebe: ...Oh crap!

[Scene: Monica and Chandler's apartment. Ross enters.]

Ross: Hey, is Rachel here?

Monica: No.

Ross: She's still at dinner?

Monica: I guess. Why? Who's she with?

Ross: That guy Mark. From Bloomingdale's... She thinks he's just being nice to her. But I know he really wants to sleep with her.

Chandler: It's seven years ago. (he looks surprised) My time machine works!

Ross: We ran into him on the street today and he said he might have a job for her. But I know he just wants to get into her pants.

Monica: So what if he wants to sleep with her? I mean, she's single and he's cute.

Chandler: Excuse me?

Monica: Oh please! Yesterday on the subway, you couldn't stop staring at that woman with the big breasts the whole time.

Chandler: For your information, I was staring at her baby. We're about to be parents.

Monica: Oh, sorry!

(She looks at Ross, a bit ashamed. Chandler mimes "big breasts" to Ross and lip syncs "Wow". Ross looks at him, astonished and then Monica looks at Chandler again. A little too late he changes the "big breasts" mime into "rocking a baby". When he realizes Monica might have seen it he also strokes his imaginary baby's head.)

Ross: Congratulations!

Rachel: I know, it's amazing. It's amazing. It's so much better than what I had at Ralph Lauren. The money is great...

Ross: Can we, can we just stop for a second? Who said something better would come along, huh? You didn't believe me. I told you everything was gonna work out. (gasps) You know what? This calls for a bottle of Israel's finest.

CLOSING CREDITS

[Scene: Joey and Rachel's. Joey's on the phone.]

Joey: I mean, this soap opera is a great gig, but... am I missing opportunities? You know, I've always thought of myself as a serious actor. I mean, should I be trying to do more independent movies?

gig n. <口> (爵士乐、摇滚乐等) 演奏 公演 [eg: The band played a final gig before splitting up] / An independent film, or indie (adj. 独立经营的) film, is usually a low-budget film that is produced by a small movie studio. Additionally, the term is used to describe less commercially-driven art films which differ markedly from the norms of plot-driven, mainstream classical Hollywood cinema. These films are often produced by subsidiaries of larger studios, such as Sony Pictures Classics, as long as less than half of its budget comes from a major movie studio. In 2005, about 15% of the U.S. domestic box office revenue was from independent studios. Independent films are often distinguishable by their content or style. The writer or director's original authorial intent or personal creative vision is usually maintained in the final film. The independent film scene's development in the 1990s and 2000s has been stimulated by a range of factors, including the development of affordable high-definition digital video cameras that can rival 35 mm film quality and easy-to-use computer editing software and the increasing visibility (n. 可见性) of independent film festivals such as the Sundance Film Festival.

Mckenzie: (at the other end of the line) I don't know... You know what? I'm gonna put you on with my bear. Hold on. (she puts the phone at the bear's ear)

Joey: Hey bear, I need some career advice.

THE END
